SUMMER 2004

PILOT TRAINING
for
COOPERATING TEACHERS
and
UNIVERSITY SUPERVISORS

Bureau of Educator Preparation, Certification, Support and Assessment

Why is this training important?

The Connecticut State Department of Education is offering training as part of an initiative to develop a state-wide student teaching evaluation instrument. As part of a select group of educators participating in a pilot study, your feedback on the student teaching evaluation instrument and this training will determine the guidelines for future implementation of these initiatives by the CSDE.

The training will include the following learning outcomes related to the role and responsibilities of the cooperating teacher and university supervisor:

- Learn how national and state standards impact teacher preparation and the student teaching experience
- Use Connecticut's Common Core of Teaching and the CSDE Student Teaching Rubric to:
 - ✓ Support student teacher development of competency in planning, teaching, assessing, reflecting and professional responsibility;
 - ✓ Confer and provide formative, ongoing feedback to student teachers; and
 - ✓ Apply the rubric through summative evaluations of student teacher competency at the mid-term and final evaluation phase.
